The guidelines cannot anticipate all situations. However, we should follow its principles when dealing with a matter that may not be expressly covered.

Guidelines:

1. e-mail tone: Your tone in e-mails might be perceived by the recipient as offensive. Always ensure that your requests are not submitted as orders.
2. Consider your Recipients: Who should be involved and who should not, especially if disagreement exists.
i.e. subordinates should not be included in a correspondence between Managers, nor External parties included in internal emails.
3. Clear Subject Heading: It's important the topic in the subject line reflects the content of the e-mail as much as possible.
4. Approach: Always start your email with "Dear" and end with a compliment i.e., "Thank you, Kind Regards, etc..".
5. Feedback: If you need to provide feedback, please ensure it is one-on-one, constructive, specific, and objective. Your feedback should only criticize an action and not a person.
6. You & the Business: Don't let your emotions get in the way. Taking a message or feedback personally will affect your performance as well as the flow of operation. However, if you are conflicted or angry consider postponing your response.
7. Prepared Objectives: Enter every communication with an objective in mind. This will help you prioritize messages that must be conveyed and allow you to let go of unimportant side-point.
8. Conduct One-on-One Meetings: At some point, please consider holding a meeting to collectively discuss issues related to the ongoing business operations. Always maintain a written meeting agenda.
9. Recap: After a meeting, a member should follow up with a written statement outlining the terms agreed upon. Following this approach ensures that everyone is operating with the same information and expectations.
10. Follow-up: If your message is very urgent, follow up with a phone call or consider phoning rather than emailing.

11. Font: Avoid the use of red font & CAPITAL LETTERS, it always looks like the sender is shouting
12. General: We all work towards the welfare of Rowad. You should always consider this as your main objective when you are performing your duties.
13. Timely Response: It is expected that a response to any email message should be prompt (immediate) as much as possible. In all cases a response should take no more than one working day, unless a deadline is specified, where we are required to respond within the set timeframe.
14. Remove the routine closure as shown below: It does not always match the purpose of your message.
 - "Thank you in advance for our cooperation as a one team and please do not hesitate to contact me for any other clarification".
 - "Your cooperation is highly appreciated".
